

I Am From

By: Joseph

I am from thinking that I don't get that many chances in life. But I have the rest of my life left. There is way more to my life from a kid to an adult.

I am from being a boy who doesn't go outside a lot because I become really sweaty. When I go outside, I feel like I'm burning on fire. During summer time, I do go outside but I'll probably be swimming in my pool.

I am from feeling like everything in my life is going to change. I make my own chances for life and that depends on me. I chose my choices, then went with it and everything changes every single time.

I am from playing with my cousin in the Philippines during nighttime because my cousin sometimes goes to school. But I don't go to school in the Philippines so I can't play with him every day.

I am from loving my mom in different ways. It is not hard to love my mom. I am from making good choices for my mom. My mom helps me when I fall down and my mom helps me with super difficult things.

I am from... me
